Retreat + Art Fair

Next weekend I'm doing two things that I'm excited about!

My little artist retreat

The goal for this retreat is to: "Write Software to enable more and better Graphics"

There's a few bigger/more foundational pieces of code that once I write I'll be able to do animation, work with text easier, etc etc etc. I'm going to Annapolis, Maryland to isolate and just knock them out. It'll also give me space to think about this project a little more as an entrepreneurial venture. Plus, I need a little vacation. Next weeks email should have some nice updates as a result :)

My first art fair

Some of you might know this but in high school I had a clothing company with my brother. We went to trade shows and events and sold our stuff and since I've started this project I've really wanted to get back into it. The dream is to get accepted into a farmers market but I'm wetting my toes by attending my first art fair! It's in Silver Spring, Maryland and I hope it goes well. The header photo is my current table layout, minus a few things that I'm waiting on. I've been making prints non-stop this week and some new Risographs should also be arriving next week as well. Super excited to see how it all goes! Might even hold the newsletter to Sunday night so I can update y'all.

Elsewhere...

There is nothing else haha I've been busy setting up for the fair and thinking about the projects for the retreat! I will give you one small hint though on something I plan to build out - twitter.com/goodgraphicsxyz

Till Next Time!

P.S. - I typed this up on my phone so there might be typos. Yes I type all of them on my phone. But this one feels a little looser than the rest
